1.	10/20/18 21.43 (Picture 7)	Balinese Tora : Skripsi sudah selesai bang? Andra : Woy Japanese guy mendep ci. English Tora : Have you finished your thesis? Andra : Hey Japanese guy , give me a break!			✓				✓						✓				This is an example of violating maxim of relation; whereas Andra prefer to respond with unrelated topic. This joke occurs due to the bond between these two; allowing them to make a joke according to the context. The joke is actually congratulating and at the same time complementing Tora for being able to join Student Exchange Program to Japan. Therefore by revealing this using social meaning approach (considering its social circumstances in such utterance), even though Andra is violating maxim of relation but he has another intention of stating such utterance.
2.	05/26/19 09.18 (Picture 5)	Bahasa Indonesia Yanti : Kamu kemarin itu jadi ketemu bapaknya? Andra: Gak jadi. Selasa baru ada di kampus kata bapaknya. Yanti : Yah... oke deh, makasih	✓				✓							✓				In this conversation, Andra was violating maxim of quantity by adding more utterance than what is needed; he added that he will be

		ya. English Yanti : Have you met him yesterday? Andra: Not yet. He will be available in campus on Tuesday, he said. Yanti : Oh my, okay then. Thanks.																available on Tuesday. By revealing the meaning using Denotative Meaning (literal meaning), Andra was meant to give Yanti additional information about the availability of the lecturer because she has the same supervisor for her thesis; therefore Emotional Engagement as a friend of his becomes the purpose of such addition.
3.	06/07/19 15.23 (Picture 10)	Balinese Andra : Ade kabel VGA? Bara : Be sing ade. Engsap nyen ne nyilih terakhir English Andra : Do you have VGA cable connector? Bara : No, I don't have it. Who borrow it last time, I just can't remember.	✓					✓									✓	Bara was violating maxim of quantity by answering more than what is needed. Meanwhile, this is one the examples of sarcasm; whereas Bara actually meant to test whether Andra or other friend know who borrow the VGA cable connector. This analysis resulted by approaching connotative meaning which is to reveal hidden meaning in such conversation.
4.	06/07/19 23.50 (Picture 8)	Balinese Andra: Ade surat peminjaman ruangan? Bara : Coba kar alihin malu nah				✓				✓						✓		In this conversation, when Bara answered Andra's question by the intention of helping him is actually

		English          Andra: Perhaps, do you have the format of Request Letter?          Bara : Wait a second, I will try to find it																	the act of violating maxim of manner. This maxim emphasizes on clarity of one's utterance; in this case Bara's answer is not clear enough to state whether he has the format of Request Letter or not. Using affective meaning approach, it is explained that he violated such maxim to obtain certain purpose: emotional engagement to help his friend.
5.	06/18/19          22.45          (Picture 6)	Balinese          Andra: Be ngae paperne?          Miku : Kondenlah English          Andra: Have you finished your paper?          Miku : Not yet		✓															By looking at the utterances, it seems to be a plain conversation; but in fact this is the example of violating maxim of quality. When Agus answered 'not yet'; he was joking to his friend because the next day he collected the paper. And so did Putra. The deadline was the next day; therefore it is their inner joke that they meant to state: the submission of the paper is due tomorrow; of course I finished my paper. But in this case Agus was lying; even though it is just a joke; he then violated maxim of quality. The revelation of such violation can be done by approaching thematic meaning in which requires certain context that only those two what it meant.

6.	03/15/19 22.42 (Picture 9)	Balinese  Made : Jaanange gati nembak  Rinko : Sayang gen pecah gambarne men di zoom  : Padahal lung ti  Andra: Penembakan lung kone  Rinko: Oohh penembakane.  : Tak kira gambarne. English  Made : That's how you shoot!  Rinko : It's a pity that the picture is blurred when I zoomed it in. It should've been awesome  Andra: Why do you say that the shooting is awesome?  Rinko: Ah! That shooting (terrorism). I thought our group selfie			✓	✓	✓											(Two Maxim Violated) Made and Andra was talking about the picture of terrorism act (shooting) in Christchurch Mosque in March. 15th 2019. But suddenly, Rinko was joining them and talking about another picture. This then make a misunderstanding of this group chat in Messenger platform. Therefore, Rinko violated maxim of relation; to talk about unrelated topic. But he was meant to talk about another picture; in which claimed his true meaning in the conversation. Rinko also stated ambiguous statement which violates the maxim of manner; he did not specify what picture he was talking about. By using denotative theory approach, Rinko was meant to talk about the picture of their group selfie; without any intention of relating it with terrorist issue. Besides, he was just trying to approach the group conversation. Emotional Engagement then becomes a particular reason of such phenomenon; due to Rinko's purpose of joining that group chat.

7.	03/19/19 13.06 (Picture 11)	Balinese Ade : Jam kude ke Tomcat? Aldi : Hehe English Ade : When we will go to Tomcat? Aldi : Hehe			✓													Aldi was violating maxim of relation when he answered with such expressional utterance; which is unrelated to the question. By looking at circumstances at the moment (social meaning approach), Aldi forgot the promise with his group to visit Tomcat, therefore such expression used to only contribute himself in the group chat.
8.	03/19/19 13.06 (Picture 11)	Balinese Ade : Jam kude ke Tomcat? Aldi : OtW English Ade : When we will go to Tomcat? Aldi : On the way			✓													Aldi violated maxim of quality in that utterance because he was actually still on his room; replying such message. By using thematic meaning approach, his friends already know that he was lying and consider it as a joke in which most of the members in that group chat usually use to perform such joke.
9.	03/19/19	Balinese Ade : Jam kude ke Tomcat?			✓		✓											Miku here violated maxim of 13.06 (Picture 11)	Miku : Kayeh English Ade : When we will go to Tomcat? Miku : Still taking a shower																relation in which he did not answer what time exactly but instead stating his current activity. By using denotation meaning approach, he was meant to keep engaging with that group chat even though his utterance is not related.

10.	03/19/19 13.06 (Picture 11)	Balinese Ade : Jam kude ke Tomcat? Made : Yuk gas English Ade : When we will go to Tomcat? Made : Let's go!			✓				✓					✓				Made here violated maxim of relation in which he did not answer what time exactly but instead stating his excitement to go. By using social meaning approach, he was meant to keep engaging with that group chat even though his utterance is not related.
11.	03/15/19 16.06 (Picture 12)	Balinese Aldi: Pade dije ne? Sube jam 4 Miku: Di hatimu English Aldi: Where are you guys? It's already 4 o'clock Miku: Inside your heart			✓				✓					✓				In this conversation, Miku was meant to state a joke instead of answering Aldi's question. In his violation toward maxim of quality, he said a false or untrue statement in which it is impossible for someone to be inside a human organ. But in this case, the word heart is not meant as a part of human organs but instead a symbolic meaning toward a state of loving someone in a hyperbolic way (analyzed using reflected meaning approach of using symbol as a language device).

12.	08/12/19 13.44 (Picture 13)	Balinese Aldi: Mani sing ade ne ke kampus? Andra: Be di kampus. Mai ruang 13! English Aldi: Will anyone go to campus tomorrow? Andra: Already in campus. Let's go, the 13th room!	✓				✓											Aldi was asking whether anyone would go to campus the next day or not; but instead Andra answered that he was already there and even invited him to come along. Andra's utterance is classified to violate maxim of quantity because it does not answer the question properly: answering the question whether they would come or not. Using connotative approach, Andra's utterance was meant to invite Aldi to come that day instead of coming the next day. The purpose of such utterance is the invitation itself.
13.	08/07/19 15.58 (Picture 14)	Balinese Jack: Sampe jam kude kal ditu? Miku: Petengan English	✓				✓											Jack was asking about the exact time meanwhile Miku was not giving a complete answer of what time is the 'evening' he was talking

		Jack: At what time will you get back? Miku: In the evening																about. Miku then violated maxim of quantity for giving such incomplete answer; but when approaching the denotative meaning of his utterance, he was truly uncertain back then because he was in the middle of an online game tournament, so he might stay longer even if he stated an exact amount of time.
14.	09/03/19 23.52 (Picture 15)	Mixed Language (English, Bahasa Indonesia, Balinese) Caca : Kintilatos, how are you? Andra: Ape? Baik English Caca : Kintilatos, how are you? Andra: What? Good.				✓											✓	In this conversation, Caca violated maxim of manner in which she called Andra by using a sexual-related made-up name instead of his name. This could cause misunderstanding due to the ambiguous use of word in this conversation. This is one of the examples of avoiding taboo by using made-up words instead of using impolite words with sexual-related context. By using collocative meaning approach, that word can be traced into its root of word.
15.	09/03/19 23.52 (Picture 15)	Mixed Language (English, Bahasa Indonesia, Balinese) Caca : Kintilatos, how are you? Andra: Ape? Baik	✓														✓	Andra violated maxim of quantity because he answered Caca's question and added unnecessary

		English Caca : Kintilatos, how are you? Andra: What? Good.																utterance 'what'. By using affective meaning approach, in that moment Andra was sleeping; therefore he uttered such addition due to his anger of Lara's disturbance.
16.	09/04/19 11.52 (Picture )	Balinese Made : Dije ne? Langit: Kal ke Tabanan, pang ten bes sore English Made : Where are you guys? Langit : Heading to Tabanan, hope to arrive before afternoon				✓		✓									✓	The background of the situation was the wedding invitation of one member in of Made and Langit's group chat. Here, Made violated maxim of manner in which not only he was asking about the whereabouts of his friends but he also meant to remind them about the important event. Using connotative meaning approach, he included those additional message behind his utterance and Langit proved such hidden meaning as in he also understood those hidden meaning and implying to rush the other because he have to be in Tabanan after that. This is one of the examples that not only pragmatics could cause misunderstanding but pragmatics could also be used to communicate coherently in a certain situation.

17.	09/04/19 11.52 (Picture 16)	Balinese Made : Dije ne? Langit: Kal ke Tabanan, pang ten bes sore English Made : Where are you guys? Langit : Heading to Tabanan, hope to arrive before afternoon.				✓		✓										As it mentioned previously, Langit violated maxim of manner as in implying other meaning behind his utterance; in which he answered pragmatics using pragmatics. Using connotative meaning approach, Langit was meant to say 'hurry up' because he have to be in Tabanan. The purpose of this utterance is to imply politeness rather than to say it frankly.
18.	09/04/19 11.52 (Picture 16)	Balinese Made : Dije ne? Jack : Jam 5 mare mulih English Made : Where are you guys? Jack : Just get back at 5 o'clock				✓		✓							✓			Jack violated maxim of manner because his utterance was ambiguous, whether he would come or not. Using connotative meaning approach and after Jack confirmed, he was meant to come but he would come very late. Jack's purpose of his utterance was Emotional Engagement in which he wanted to inform his friend about being late and couldn't come together with them.

19.	09/04/19 11.52 (Picture 16)	Balinese Made : Dije ne? Aldi : Nu di Buyan wkwk, nah nyen kar malunan kemu gen. English Made : Where are you guys? Aldi : Still at Buyan Lake, haha. Who wants to come there earlier just come.	✓				✓											Aldi violated maxim of quantity as in not only answering Made but he also added something else after that. Using denotative approach, his additional words was meant to consider those who wanted to come earlier; in which considered the act of being polite.
20.	09/05/19 11.39 (Picture 17)	Bahasa Indonesia - Balinese Rinko : Mai kamvuss Miku : Lihatlah dan bukalah mata hatimu English Rinko : Let's kamvuss Miku : Look and listen to your heart	✓								✓							Rinko violated maxim of quantity because his sentence is not a complete sentence as it was missing an predicate. Using collocative meaning approach, the root word of kamvuss is kampus (in English kampus is campus). Therefore possible complete sentence was 'Let's go to campus'. The purpose of his utterance is an invitation to come to campus.

21.	09/05/19 11.39 (Picture 17)	Bahasa Indonesia - Balinese Rinko : Mai kamvuss Miku : Lihatlah dan bukalah mata hatimu English Rinko : Let's kamvuss Miku : Look and listen to your heart 			✓													In here, Miku violated maxim of relation in which his response was not related to the previous statement; in which Miku uttered a piece of song lyric. But due to the picture send previously (a guy who was indicated to be in campus), Miku's utterance is explained to be a joke to mock that guy in the picture. It is analyzed using social meaning approach in which determining utterance using its surroundings.
22.	09/14/19 12.48 (Picture 18)	Balinese Andra: Mare Pee Wee mare rame gati. Langsung ngamuk ne mebalih Caca : Wkwkkkw Andra: Men jam ne ngaret pembukaane Caca : Men kao ngamuk juga? Andra: Gaklah. Kecewa aja. Bes nunggu lama. Pas seru lagi. Pee Wee-nya aja juga padahal gak pengen stop. Be polisine	✓				✓						✓				✓	(Two Intended Meaning Approach and Two Purposes) Andra had violated maxim of quantity in regards to his excessive amount of additional information rather than what is required; in which to answer Caca question with yes or no only. But it was due to Emotional Engagement in which to

		ngambul. English Andra: When Pee Wee was there, that's when people started to gather around. But they went crazy and complained by shouting... Caca : LOL Andra: Because the opening stage was late Caca : And you went crazy too? Andra: No. Just disappointed. We waited too long. It was pretty hyped back then. Even Pee Wee didn't want to stop. But the police was already pissed.																express lots of feelings at once; giving true meaning without any implication in those words (denotative meaning approach). With the addition of collocative meaning approach, the word Pee Wee was an abbreviation of Pee Wee Gaskin (an Indonesian pop-punk band). This abbreviation violated maxim of quantity and the purpose of such act is to save some time in typing those messages.
23.	09/06/19 09.08 (Picture 19)	Balinese Miku : Kampus Kampus Rinko: Kal bareng Alvin malu sep ke sekolah mare langsung ke kmps Miku : K k Rinko : Aldi ngoraang ke kampus kone ye masi English Miku : Campus Campus Rinko: I'll go with Alvin first to school then I'll catch up to campus Miku : Okay okay. Rinko: Aldi said he would come too				✓											✓	Using social meaning approach, the circumstance in that conversation is between college students in the same campus. By stating 'campus campus' and looking at the other responses, Miku's utterance is meant to invite his friends to campus. But by doing this, Miku had violated maxim of manner as in having another meaning toward his utterance.
24.	09/06/19 09.08	Balinese Miku : Kampus Kampus Rinko: Kal bareng Alvin malu sep ke sekolah mare				✓		✓									✓	By analyzing with Connotative meaning approach, Rinko was

Rinko : Aldi said he would come too																actually stating that he could not come immediately to campus due to certain reason. Such implication violated maxim of manner, but the purpose is to engage in communicating with his friends in that group chat even though he could not come immediately.
25.	09/06/19 09.08 (Picture 19)	Balinese Miku : Kampus Kampus Rinko : Kal bareng Alvin malu sep ke sekolah mare langsung ke kmps Miku : K k Rinko : Aldi ngoraang ke kampus kone ye masi English Miku : Campus Campus Rinko : I'll go with Alvin first to school then I'll catch up to campus Miku : Okay okay. Rinko : Aldi said he would come too	✓															Miku slightly violated maxim of quantity as in stating two words that meant the same. He supposed to just say 'okay' once but instead he said it twice. Analyzing with denotative meaning approach, he just meant the same thing he was saying previously. The purpose is just his habit that came naturally to repeat such word.
26.	09/06/19 09.08 (Picture 19)	Balinese Miku : Kampus Kampus Rinko : Kal bareng Alvin malu sep ke sekolah mare langsung ke kmps Miku : K k Rinko : Aldi ngoraang ke kampus kone ye masi				✓												Rinko violated maxim of manner as in having another meaning toward his utterance. Miku : Period A is 8.30. Or 7.30?			✓		✓							✓			Miku violated maxim of relation as in stating unrelated answer toward Made's question. Info please Agus : Ah Lara ngalain English Lara : Guys, for those who still stay in campus, have you already registered to thesis examination? Info please Agus : Hey, Lara is leaving us			✓			✓						✓			Agus violated maxim of relation as in not answering Lara's question with a proper answer. Analyzing the circumstances around them, he was meant to give a joke toward his friend who were preparing for her thesis examination; therefore she was one step ahead of 'leaving them' as in graduating and leaving the other friends behind her.

He should just state clearly that he woke up without any hidden meaning which makes it more complicated. Analyzing with connotative meaning approach, he was mean to make a sarcasm in his conversation with Yanti.
41.	03/13/18 21.05 (Picture 30)	Bahasa Indonesia Onat : Apa kabar kawan? Agus : Senin jam 3 di 3.3 Nat  English Onat : How are you everybody Agus : Monday, at 3 o'clock in Room 3.3 Nat				✓		✓										Agus violated maxim of relation as in replying irrelevant answer. ## Observation Interview Sheet

Date : October, 11th 2019

Time : 20.03 – 20.08

Interviewer : Good evening

Subject : Good evening.

Interviewer : Okay, thank you for coming, now I like to interview you about my research, are you ready?

Subject : Yes.

Interviewer : Okay, now let we start first by me asking questions. Okay, first, how do you usually do your conversation with people around you?

Subject : Yes.

Interviewer : I mean, can you specify how you did the conversation?

Subject : Sometimes chatting in some apps, chatting directly, that's all.

Interviewer : Okay, do you Pragmatics?

Subject : Pragmatics? Pragmatics... Mmm, I think I've heard it somewhere.

Interviewer : Okay, so, Pragmatics is a study of how people have other meaning beside what they say.

Subject : Ooh, like that... Aah, I know it then.

Interviewer : So, Pragmatics actually has rules in communicating, like we have to be honest, straightforward and clear in speaking. But we violate the rules due to some occasions. Actually you also violated those rules...

Subject : Me?

Interviewer : Yes, so here... (pointing at the paper)

Not yet. He will be available in campus on Tuesday, he said.

Here you violated a maxim, can you tell me the purpose?

Subject : Because she is my friend, and I would to help her.

Interviewer : Is that it?

Subject : Yes

Interviewer : Okay then. And then this one...

Hey Japanese guy , give me a break!

What do you mean by this one?

Subject : So he was sending me the photo of him with his Japanese friends in Japan, and that's why I made the joke.

Interviewer : So is your friend in college?

Subject : Yes, but different department. He went to Japan for Students Exchange Program.

Interviewer : Okay, next question then.

Already in campus. Let's go, the 13th room!

What about this one?

Subject : What do you mean?

Interviewer : Look at this (showing the paper), according to this conversation...

Subject : Ah, I want to inform my friends to come to campus.

Interviewer : So, it's like in invitation right? Because he asked about tomorrow not that day.

Subject : Yes, sure.

Interviewer : Okay next...

No. Just disappointed. We waited too long. It was pretty hyped back then. Even Pee Wee didn't want to stop. But the police was already pissed.

What is the purpose of your utterance?

Subject : I was just telling a story.

Interviewer : But you were being too informative, any reason behind that?

Subject : Oh yeah, doesn't it seem normal to you? I mean, people just talking to each other and ... Yeah, I just want to tell her the story of concert.

Interviewer : Okay, I get it. And then you also say the word Pee Wee, is there any reason why you abbreviate that?

Subject : It is usual isn't it? Or I think it's just my habit I guess.

Interviewer : Okay, like to make it quick?

Subject : Yes-yes.

Interviewer : And then, how about this? At campus?

Why you ask with fewer words in your sentence?

Subject : Because I want to say it like that, you know, shorter.

Interviewer : Okay, next is this one...

I make presentation 2x. I become a teacher in Monday.

What is your purpose by saying this?

Subject : I was making an excuse to not doing the simulation. Not an excuse entirely, it was true, but, I guess I want to make her do the simulation because I know that she is very kind and will do the simulation if she knew my condition.

Interviewer : So it was like, because you want her to do it, the simulation I mean. And you want to ask in a nice way, like politer.

Subject : Mmmh-mmh, like that.

Interviewer : Okay, the next one is ...

I'm even not sleep yet.

What is your purpose here?

Subject : Sarcasm, I guess.

Interviewer : Okay, I get it, it was quite clear actually. And how about this one?

Killing bites good?

Subject : Mmhm, Anime. It was Anime-reference kinda thing. Is it violating also?

Interviewer : Yes, because your utterance is not clear, like it's missing predicate and is not a complete question form.

Subject : What do you mean by that?

Interviewer : I mean, what is your purpose in stating such incomplete question? Like why not use the complete form: "what do you think about Killing Bites anime?"

Subject : I think it's my habit.

Interviewer : So your habit is to type sentence shorter right? Make it save your time?

Subject : Make it simpler

Interviewer : Okay, thank you. And how about this?

In event and ToA. ToA normal and hard.

Subject : Information, I was informing my friend about the event.

Interviewer : Okay next...

No, I want to do it with the others.

How about this, the purpose of this one?

Subject : So, my purpose is... Mm, refuse, you know, in a soft way.

Interviewer : Thank you, and this one?

Jack, where is Pedawa? I was just about to go there with Miku.

Don't tell Caca. And the purpose of this is?

Subject : Giving surprise to Caca.

Interviewer : Okay, but I mean why you violated the maxim not the reason why you went there.

Subject : Yes, that's it. I want to inform him about me coming there.

Interviewer : Like an additional information right?

Subject : (nodding)

Interviewer : Ok thank you for your time

Subject : No problem

Observation Interview Sheet

Date : October, 3rd 2019

Time : 18.40 – 18.44

Interviewer : Good afternoon.

Subject : Good afternoon.

Interviewer : May I interview you a little bit about my thesis?

Subject : Yes, why not.

Interviewer : So, I would like to ask few questions about your conversation in social media. May I begin now?

Subject : Sure, sure.

Interviewer : How do you usually do the conversation in social media?

Subject : Mmm... I just do the conversation like others. I mean, of course social media is different than daily conversation in real life. Usually we chat a lot right? So usually it is more informal, I guess.

Interviewer : Maybe, have you ever heard of Pragmatics?

Subject : Yes, it is in our curriculum in ELE.

Interviewer : Yes, so it is about how people use some maxims or rules in communicating to each other. But they tend to violate it due to some reasons. Have you ever realized that you violated them in social media?

Subject : What kind of rules exactly?

Interviewer : Some violate maxim of quality which means to lie, or others to imply sarcasm.

Subject : Okay

Interviewer : So, in this utterance, what do you mean exactly?

Kintilatos, how are you?

(pointing at the data classification)

Subject : This word? Oh it is just a nickname, you know. When you are close to someone then you will call them with nickname or something.

Interviewer : So here you violated the maxim, by having another meaning in this word which is to call the other person, right?

Subject : Yes, that's what I meant.

Interviewer : Here, what is your purpose?

Subject : What do you mean?

Interviewer : The purpose of using this word to call someone?

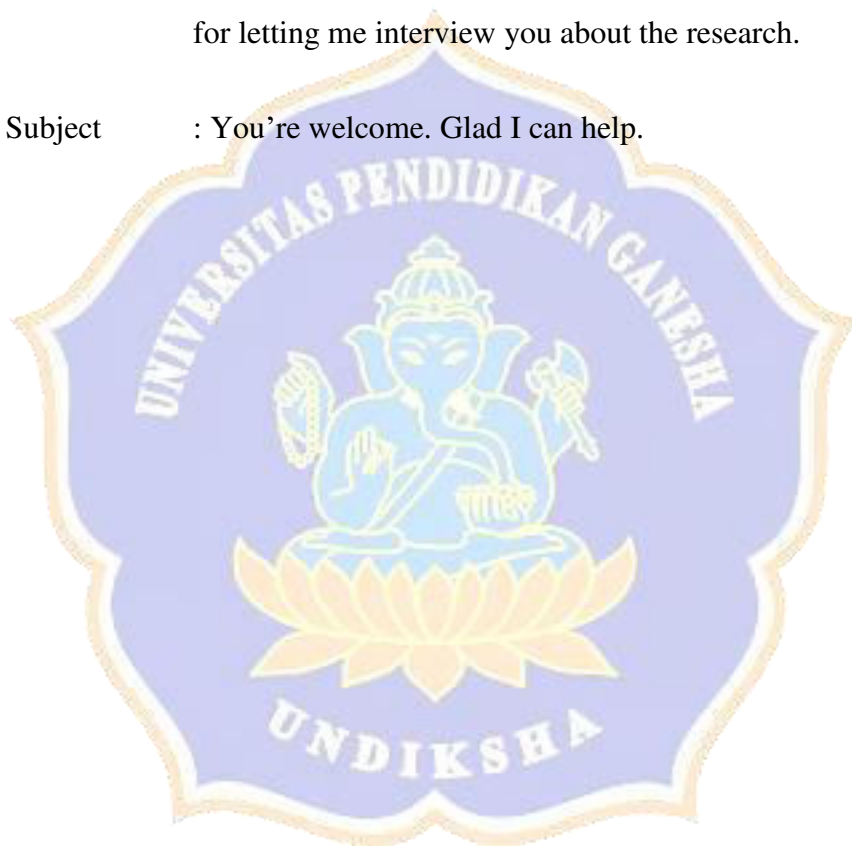

Subject : I was just meant to say a more decent, word, I guess.

Interviewer : So you mean avoiding taboo right? To avoid being too vulgar in saying the root of the word; which is a part of human body.

Subject : Yes. I guess it is normal to soften our words like that. And it will make it funnier also, so it would be like that.

Interviewer : Okay, thanks for your confirmation. And thank you also for letting me interview you about the research.

Subject : You're welcome. Glad I can help.

Observation Interview Sheet

Date : October, 4th 2019

Time : 11.04 – 11.07

Interviewer : Good morning, may I interview you about my research?

Subject : Sure

Interviewer : So I was in your group chat as I got permission from your KORTI (leader of a class). And I found some violation of maxim in terms of Pragmatics, in social media I mean. But first, do you know what maxim is?

Subject : No, sorry.

Interviewer : Maxim is about being considered in speaking, so there are rules to make conversation more effective. Do you often use social media?

Subject : Yes, of course, nowadays it's very necessary

Interviewer : Do you use Pragmatics in your text?

Subject : Mmm, I don't really know. Can you tell me more about it?

Interviewer : Sure, Pragmatics is about having meaning beyond what it seems. So it's like when your girlfriend said she's fine but actually they were not.

Subject : Okay... What's the question again?

Interviewer : Do you use Pragmatics in your text?

Subject : Like lying? Yes maybe

Interviewer : So you're not sure whether you use it or not right? It's okay.

Subject : Yes

Interviewer : So here (showing a paper) is the conversation in your group chat. So what do you mean by saying this? You want friendly price or indrajaya price?

Subject : What do you mean?

Interviewer : I mean your purpose

Subject : Oh, um, I guess I just want to approach the one who interested with my speaker. I need to sell it fast though, so I offer him if he want a cheap price or a little bit above cheap price, something like that.

Interviewer : Okay, so you meant to negotiate, in like a better way by using such expression.

Subject : Yes

Interviewer : Are you aware that he might not understand the terms though?

Subject : Yeah, I will just explain him later if he really interested to buy. I guess he understand though

Interviewer : Okay, thank you for your explanation. And now here is another one: For those who are free, just come to room 3.3. It is tiring to think whether or not you could have a thesis examination; so it is better to meet some friends and we can talk to each other in the room when I'm presenting some material LOL

What is the purpose of your utterance?

Subject : I want to convince my friends to come to my thesis examination.

Interviewer : Okay, and you make it interesting right? Your word play?

Subject : Yes, maybe I just want to say something to get their attention and read my text.

Interviewer : Okay then, thank you. I think that's all about my interview. Thank you so much for your help.

Subject : You're welcome

Observation Interview Sheet

Date : October, 4rd 2019

Time : 15.56 – 15.59

Interviewer : Can I interview you Made ?

Subject : Yes you can

Interviewer : I want to interview you about our conversation in social media, is it okay?

Subject : Okay

Interviewer : Do you know what maxim is?

Subject : I don't know

Interviewer : Maxim is rules of communication that should be obeyed to interact effectively in our daily life, Now the next question is most of the time do you do communication in direct communication or non direct communication ?

Subject : I do both, sometimes direct and non direct, if we meet I use direct.

Interviewer : Next, do you use pragmatic in conervation?

Subject : I don't know

Interviewer : So maybe you use it uncossiously ?

Subject : Yes maybe

Interviewer : Do you aware you do maxim violation in conversation with your classmate ?

Subject : No I don't, because I don't know what is maxim violation

Interviewer : Maxim violation is breakig the rules of communication it self

Subject : Ah I get it

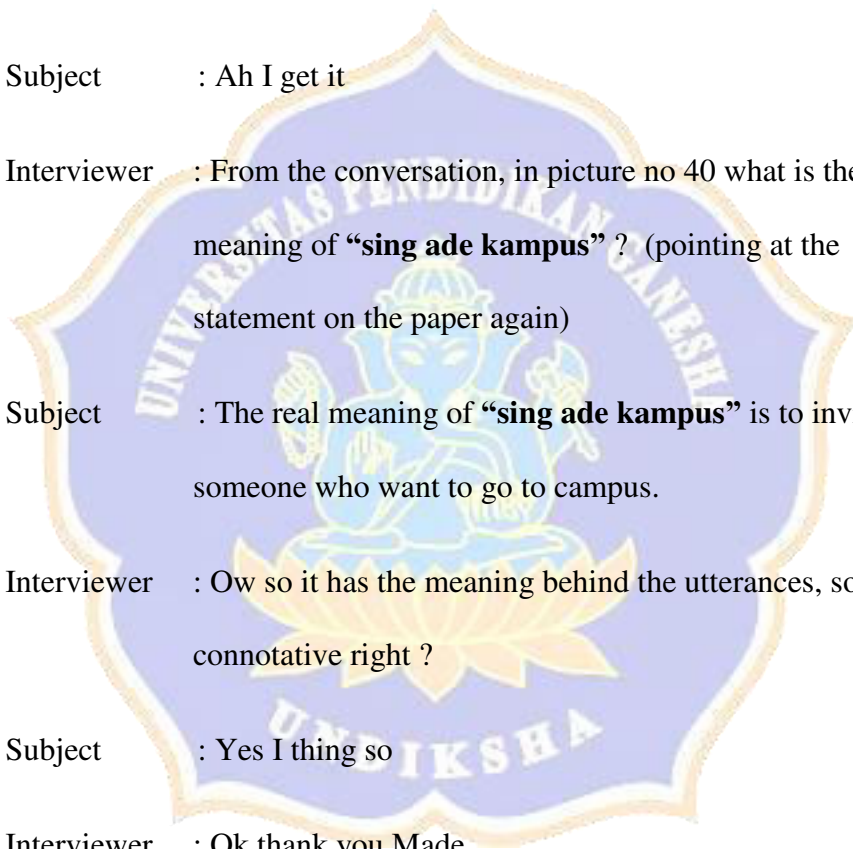

Interviewer : From the conversation, in picture no 40 what is the real meaning of "sing ade kampus" ? (pointing at the statement on the paper again)

Subject : The real meaning of "sing ade kampus" is to invite someone who want to go to campus.

Interviewer : Ow so it has the meaning behind the utterances, so it is connotative right ?

Subject : Yes I thing so

Interviewer : Ok thank you Made

Observation Interview Sheet

Date : October, 2019 6th 2019

Time : 16.20 – 16.24

Interviewer : Miku can I have interview with you ?

Subject : Yes

Interviewer : It is about conversation in social media

Subject : Ow ok

Interviewer : By the way do you know what is maxim ?

Subject : No I don't know

Interviewer : Maxim is the rule of communication between one person to other person

Subject : Ow yea

Interviewer : Sometimes you do conversation in direct, indirect, or both of them ?

Subject : If its close I use direct and if it far I use indirect

Interviewer : Most of the time do you use pragmatic in conversation ?

Subject : Sometimes I use in joking around with my friends

Interviewer : Do you aware in conversation you do maxim violation a lot ?

Subject : What is maxim violation?

Interviewer : Maxim violation is violated the rules communication it self Subject : Ow there is a rule ?

Interviewer : As I told you before Maxim is the rule of communication

Subject : Lol sorry I forget

Interviewer : Ok no problem, From this conversation what is the meaning of picture No. 17 "Lihatlah mata hatimu" when asked by rinko?

Subject : In this the context is joking, before that I send a picture like beggar so I insert "orang jalanan song"

Interviewer : Next is Picture No .19, what is the meaning of "Campus campus" ?

Subject : This is to invite friends to go to campus

Interviewer : Ok for the next one is No.20, what is the maning of "period A is 8.30. or 7.30 ?

Subject : Made is asking what is BC period and I only know A period, A period is between 7.30 to 8.30 but I asking other too.

Interviewer : Ow so you want to help your friend but you don't know the exact time of BC period, thank you for letting me interview you.

Subject : No problem.

Observation Interview Sheet

Date : October, 4th 2019

Time : 11.12 – 11.15

Interviewer : Hello, thank you for your time. May I begin the interview?

Subject : Yes-yes.

Interviewer : So, first, how do you usually start a conversation?

Subject : Mm, I talk with people.

Interviewer : And beside the direct conversation, perhaps you do the indirect conversation too? Like texting or post a status in Social Media?

Subject : Oh, yes, of course.

Interviewer : So, have you heard about Pragmatics?

Subject : Mm, no. Wait... No.

Interviewer : So, I explain a bit. Pragmatics is about saying something but sometimes have another meaning. And in Pragmatics, there is maxim of communication, like rules to talk to each other.

Subject : Okay...

Interviewer : So then, do aware that you have violated the rules?

Subject : Really? When?

Interviewer : In your text, as I saw it in your group chat. So like this. If I may know, what is the meaning of this utterance?

Remember my machete.

Subject : Yeah, I was just remember my machete that I left behind, so I told him to bring it with him.

Interviewer : So it was like, reminder, correct?

Subject : Yes.

Interviewer : Okay thank you. Next, this one. So may I know about the purpose of this sentence? I'm not sure either bro.

Subject : I just wanted to answer the question about the party.

Interviewer : Okay, but actually this violated a maxim that I mentioned before. So it's like when someone ask a question, they should answer correctly. Like is it a yes-no question, or the question with longer answer like 'where is your address?'.

Subject : Okay.

Interviewer : My point is, why you answer longer because you supposed to answer only with yes or no, like that.

Subject : Um, I was just trying to answer his question. If it were me asking in the group chat, and nobody answer, it will be, like pitiful.

Interviewer : Okay, so you meant to be nice with him by responding him right? Even though it is not the answer needed.

Subject : Yes, like that.

Interviewer : Okay, and next question, what is your purpose to say this : Toserba Price bit.

Subject : It was a joke.

Interviewer : So you aware that your answer is not between the option right?

Subject : Yes, because I just want to joke around.

Interviewer : Okay, I'm sorry if I have lots of question.

Subject : It's okay, kak. Go on.

Interviewer : Okay, this one. So, instead of answering your friend's question with yes/no, you answer with by stating a specific day (At Friday, Mang ). Can you tell me the purpose?

Subject : Mm... Because I want to tell the correct day when we get back (from our hometown).

Interviewer : So you were just trying to inform your friend right?

Subject : Yes, of course.

Interviewer : Okay, so actually that is the last question. Thank you for letting me interviews you.

Subject : You're welcome, kak.

Observation Interview Sheet

Date : October, 3rd 2019

Time : 13.29 – 13.35

Interviewer : Hello, may I interview you a bit about my research?

Subject : Yes-yes.

Interviewer : I want to interview you about our conversation in social media, is it okay?

Subject : Okay-okay.

Interviewer : First, do you know what maxim is?

Subject : No, I don't.

Interviewer : Maxim is rules of communication that should be obeyed to interact effectively in our daily life. So, do you usually use direct conversation or indirect like in social media? Which one do you usually do often? Or constantly doing both?

Subject : Usually I prefer the direct conversation, but if I can't find them anywhere then I would use social media to contact them.

Interviewer : And do you use Pragmatics in that conversation?

Subject : For certain jokes, usually I use Pragmatics. But not like a heavy-complicated kind of jokes, more like a common joke I expect everybody would understand.

Interviewer : Okay, a simple joke, you meant?

Subject : Yes the simple one. Usually like Satire.

Interviewer : And regarding to maxim violation, do you aware that you did such violation consciously?

Subject : Actually, I'm not really familiar with maxim, so ... Maybe I'm not aware when I did that.

Interviewer : So it is possible that Maxim Violation occurred without you knowing that right?

Subject : Yes, it is possible that I did it.

Interviewer : So, from the conversation paper (pointing the conversation in the paper), can you tell me the reason of such act ? (violating a maxim)

Subject : Um...

Interviewer : From the conversation, we can see why you state this ? (pointing at the statement on the paper again)

Subject : Um... This one?

LOL where usually people park their vehicle?

The meaning of this statement?

Interviewer : Yes, the intended meaning behind this statement

Subject : The intention is simply because I want to ask is there any parking lot or not. So that it won't be useless if we come there and not getting any parking lot, so what's the point of coming there, right?

Interviewer : So, then the intended meaning is to make sure whether they have wide parking space, right? That's the meaning of the sentence right?

Subject : Yes, correct.

Interviewer : And the purpose is because you care where you and your friends would park right?

Subject : Yes, of course.

Interviewer : So what about the conversation no. 19:

I'll go with Alvin first to school then I'll catch up to campus.

So, what that means? Because Miku was only stating 'campus campus' and you suddenly responded with that statement.

Subject : Because, usually when Miku said 'campus-campus', he always meant to invite us to come together to campus. So what I was planning to do is going to school with Kevin first, then come to campus, that's what I meant. So my point is if the others want to come to campus first, then come, I'll catch up.

Interviewer : So the purpose is to make your friends not to wait too long for you, right?

Subject : Exactly.

Interviewer : And how about this, still picture no. 19, the last sentence.

Subject : This one?

Aldi said he would come too.

What I meant was, so they were going to go to campus right? The previous day, I was asked by Aldi, if I want to go campus tomorrow or not. So I was meant to make them not to wait to each other. So if Aldi go to campus and so do Miku, they could come together instead of waiting for me and Kevin.

Interviewer : So it was about you suggesting them right? To go to campus together?

Subject : Yes, correct.

Interviewer : Thank you so much for the interview.

Subject : You're welcome.

Observation Interview Sheet

Date : October, 4th 2019

Time : 15.09 – 15.13

Interviewer : Good afternoon. Are you ready to be interviewed?

Subject : Yes, I'm ready.

Interviewer : Okay, but first, I want to ask, do you use Social Media?

Subject : Yes, everybody does, LOL

Interviewer : Hehe, I just want to make sure. And then, when do you usually use it?

Subject : Like every day. Of course not every minute but I use it quite a lot.

Interviewer : Okay, so have you heard about Pragmatics?

Subject : Not sure. But I heard it somewhere.

Interviewer : Okay, so it's actually one of our lesson in ELE. So, it's about having other meaning than what is actually said by the speaker. You know when you want to mock someone but want to do it softly, you use sarcasm a lot.

Subject : I know sarcasm.

Interviewer : Yes, that's actually one of Pragmatics form. And, actually Pragmatics has rules to make conversation easier to be understood. Do you aware that you violate rules in your group chat?

Subject : I guess no. But not sure, hehe.

Interviewer : So here I have the data, and I would like to confirm some sentences. Like this one (pointing at the paper). What is the purpose of this sentence?

Subject : The *s*s one? Okay, because I just want to help.

Interviewer : May I know the complete meaning of your sentence?

Subject : What I wanted to say is 'do you want any *s*s hard disk?

Interviewer : Did you probably mean to say the internal or external?

Subject : Okay, what I meant was the internal, but recently I made it an external hard disk, maybe I just confuse anyone by saying it is internal.

Interviewer : So, you did this because you want to offer your help to your friend right?

Subject : Yes, like that.

Interviewer : And about this utterance:

If you meant the internal one, I have it. But not the external.

Can you tell me the purpose of this sentence?

Subject : Yes, um, I just want to make sure whether my friend really didn't need the my hardisk. Actually as I said before, I failed to tell my friends that what I meant is the external but from the internal hardisk, I think that's what makes us confuse. Me and my friend, I mean.

Interviewer : Okay thank you for your answer. It really helps me in understanding the meaning behind your sentences. Thank you.

Subject : You're welcome. Good luck.
