Abstract

Traditional games are one of the cultural treasures that are typical of a nation's culture, so character education can be formed through games. Traditional games are a type of traditional game played by children in some areas which are passed down from generation to generation to continue the traditions of that area. Traditional games have cultural value and have a function, namely training players in things that are important later in the lives of children in society, such as practicing counting, training thinking skills, training courage, training honesty and sportsmanship.
