Law Studies Program

This research aims to (1) find out the implementation of the Republic of Indonesia Prosecutor's Regulation Number 10 of 2019 in the Direct Sales Process of State-Confiscated Goods at the Buleleng District Prosecutor's Office, and (2) find out the obstacles that occur in the Direct Sale of State-Confiscated Goods at the Buleleng District Prosecutor's Office. The type of research used is empirical legal research with descriptive research characteristics. Location: This research was conducted at the Buleleng District Prosecutor's Office and the Singaraja KPKNL Office. The data collection techniques used were documented study techniques, observation, and interviews. The sample determination technique used is Non Probabilistic Sampling with Purposive Sampling subject determination. The data processing technique used is qualitative data analysis. The results of the research show (1) the procedures for implementing direct sales at the Buleleng District Prosecutor's Office were carried out in accordance with the contents of the Republic of Indonesia Prosecutor's Regulation Number 10 of 2019. However, there were several things that were obstacles to its implementation. (2) The obstacle experienced by the Buleleng District Prosecutor's Office in carrying out direct sales is the high assessment of the fair price set by the Singaraja KPKNL. People who want to buy also have the potential to be constrained by distance and time, because the direct sales process at the Buleleng District Prosecutor's Office is only carried out offline and within 1 (one) day.
