ABSTRACT

This study aims to (1) determine the role and responsibility of the Buleleng Regency Government towards people with disabilities who are victims of sexual violence; and (2) to identify inhibiting factors in the implementation of these roles and responsibilities. The type of research used is empirical legal research. This study is descriptive in nature using primary and secondary data. Data collection techniques are carried out by means of observation, interviews, document studies, which will later be analyzed qualitatively. The sampling technique uses purposive sampling which is analyzed qualitatively. The results of this study indicate that (1) the role and responsibility of the Buleleng Regency Government towards people with disabilities who are victims of sexual violence include providing legal protection, providing counseling assistance, providing medical assistance, carrying out recovery efforts (rehabilitation), providing special rooms for victims, providing legal counseling and information to the community, guaranteeing the rights of victims, and providing a system for receiving reports that is accessible and friendly to the disabled; and (2) factors that hinder the process of providing legal protection include: lack of public awareness and understanding of law, lack of budget from the government, unavailability of safe houses/shelters, obstacles from the victims themselves, and minimal human resources for investigators at the PPA Unit of the Buleleng Police and the Social Services. Key words: Roles, responsibilities, victims, disabilities, sexual violence.

Keyword: Role of Government, disability, Victims of Sexual Violence.
