Candi borobudur

Borobudur Temple is a masterpiece of Buddhist culture that stands majestically amidst the natural expanse of Magelang, Central Java. Built in the 8th century by the Syailendra dynasty, this temple symbolizes the glory of Indonesia's ancient architecture. From a distance, Borobudur temple looks like a giant stone mountain composed of adesite blocks. The building is a stepped pyramid with nine platform and a main stupa at the top. Each level has intricate and detailed reliefs, telling the teachings of buddha as well as the life of the people at the time.

When climbing the steps of the temple, visitors will feel a soothing atmosphere of silence. The cool morning air blends with the distinctive scent of dew-soaked volcanic stone. Hand touch the cold and rough stone surface, as if in direct contact with traces of history. Surrounding the temple, there are 72 small stupas, each with a buddha statue inside, which look beautiful when the sunlight shines on them from the sides, creating charming silhouettes. The view from the top of the temple is truly extraordinary: green rice fields, the manoreh mountains, and the vast, bright blue sky blend into a mesmerizing nature painting. Borobudur temple is not only an ancient building, but also a symbol of wisdom, spirituality and cultural beauty that should be preserved forever.

The Beauty of Mangunan Pine Forest

Mangunan Pine Forest, located in Dlingo, Bantul, Yogyakarta, is a natural tourist destination that offers beauty and tranquility that is hard to find in the city. Upon entering the forest area, your eyes are immediately greeted by rows of tall and slender pine trees, towering as if touching the sky. The trunks are dark brown and straight, while the leaves form a green canopy that shades the ground below. Sunlight streaming in through the gaps in the leaves creates patterns of light that dance on the dry pine needle-covered ground.

The air inside the forest is cool and fresh, with the distinctive scent of pine trees soothing the soul. The gentle breeze makes the leaves sway gently and produces a peaceful rustling sound. In some corners of the forest, there are photo spots in the form of wooden houses, viewing posts, and hammocks hanging between two trees, inviting visitors to relax and enjoy nature.

From the vantage point, you can see the green hills and the Oya river twisting and turning like a silver ribbon. The view is mesmerizing, especially when a light mist covers the valley in the morning, making the atmosphere feel magical and soothing. Mangunan Pine Forest is not just a place to take pictures, but also the perfect space to contemplate, enjoy nature, and get away from it all.

My Father my hero

My father is my hero and role model. My Father's name is Budi Santoso. He has an oval face, thick eyebrows, and tan skin. His hair is black with a bit of gray, and he has a tall stature. He is fifty years old, and even though he is no longer young, he remains fit and active. Despite being tired after work, he always makes time to play with us. He is a wise figure and always gives good advice. I respect him greatly for his dedication and sacrifices.

The balinese traditional house

The balinese traditional house, known as the rumah tradi ~~bali~~ Bali (Traditional Balinese house), embodies the philosophy, culture, and spirituality of the balinese people. It consists of several ~~separate~~ separate buildings within a single complex, each with a distinct function, such as a sleeping pavilion (bale daga), a family pavilion (bale daw), and a family temple (pura) as a place of prayer.

Each building is surrounded by a wall and traditional Balinese gate called angkulangkul, decorated with delicate carving in the Hindu-Balinese ~~style~~ style. The roof is made of palm fiber or clay tiles, and the walls are made of natural red brick. The aroma of incense always lingers in the morning due to the daily offerings. The atmosphere of a Balinese traditional house is serene and harmonious, reflecting the strong connection between humans, nature, and god. This house is not only a place to live, but also a reflection of the values of Balinese life.

The Figure of Ki Hajar Dewantara

Ki Hajar Dewantara was a national education figure who contributed greatly to the Indonesian nation. He had a stern face with intelligent and sharp eyes. He was known as a simple yet dignified man with a strong fighting spirit. He founded Taman Siswa, a school that provided educational opportunities for the underprivileged during the Dutch colonial period.

His famous educational philosophy is "Ing ngarsa sung tuladha, ing madya mangun karsa, tut wuri han-dayani." This means that a leader must set an example from the front, build enthusiasm among the people, and provide encouragement from behind. His figure not only enlightened the nation but also liberated the people from the shackles of ignorance. To this day, his name and struggle are always remembered and honored, especially on National Education Day.

My vacation Fun

My vacation this time was very fun because I went to the playground with my family. We left in the morning feeling enthusiastic. The park was spacious and full of rides such as Ferris wheel, roller coasters, swimming pools and flower garden. The clear air and blue sky made the atmosphere even more exciting.

I tried almost all the rides, laughing and screaming on the roller coaster and taking picture in front of the colorful flower garden. We also had a picnic under a shady tree while enjoying mom's lunch. Laughter and jokes were heard throughout the day. In the afternoon, we went home with tired bodies but happy hearts. This vacation gave us beautiful memories that will be hard to forget.

Sunset at Kuta Beach

Kuta Beach in Bali offers a mesmerizing and unforgettable sunset panorama. As the sun dips to the west, the sky above Kuta Beach turns into a giant canvas of orange, pink and purple colors that blend together. This view is enhanced by the horizon line of the sea that slowly "swallows" the sun into its embrace. The golden rays of the sun bounce off the surface of the sea, creating beautiful sparkles that sway with the waves.

The sea breeze blows gently, caressing the faces and fluttering the hair of visitors. The salty, fresh scent of the sea blends with the warm sand of the beach on the soles of the feet. Children run around chasing small waves, while couples sit next to each other on mats, enjoying the romantic atmosphere. The sound of crashing waves combined with the laughter of visitors creates a soothing natural harmony. In the distance, surfers are still playing with the waves, the silhouettes of their bodies adding to the dramatic visual beauty of twilight. The atmosphere at Kuta Beach at dusk is not only beautiful, but also brings serenity and attitude for God's creation.

The Unique Flavor of Betutu Chicken

Ayam Betutu is a Balinese dish that has a rich and unique flavor. This dish is made from a whole chicken that is steamed and seasoned with spices such as shallots, garlic, chilies, ginger, turmeric, and candlenut. After seasoning, the chicken is wrapped in banana leaves and cooked for a long time. Usually steamed or grilled in a husk fire.

Once served, the fragrant aroma of spices immediately wafts up and whets the appetite. The taste of the chicken is very savory, spicy, and deeply penetrates to the bone. The texture is tender, soft, and easy to tear. Each bite brings a warm sensation from the distinctive spices. Ayam Betutu is not only delicious, but also reflects the richness of Bali's culinary culture that combines tradition, patience, and high taste.

My Beloved Teacher

Mr. Rahman is my Indonesian language teacher at school. He is known as a wise and patient teachers. His face is clean and dignified, with sharp yet friendly eyes. He always wears a neat shirt and shiny black shoes. His voice is loud, clear, and full of enthusiasm when teaching. Every word he says is easy to understand and full of meaning.

Mr. Rahman not only teaches but also educates us to become honest and disciplined individuals. He loves to share his life experiences, which often inspire us. He never gets angry without reason and always gives students the opportunity to ask questions or express their opinion. Although strict, he deeply cares about his students. When a student is sad or having problems, he will approach and offer support. His presence in class is always eagerly awaited, because we know he teaches from the heart.

Panglipuran village

Panglipuran village is a Balinese traditional village famous for its beauty, orderliness and cleanliness. Located in Bangli Regency, the village presents a traditional rural atmosphere that is still very thick with cultural and spiritual values. The houses in Panglipuran village are built in a uniform Balinese architectural style, have a distinctive gate called angkul-angkul, and the front yard is neatly arranged and clean. There are no electrical cables that look chaotic or modern concrete buildings that spoil the view. Everything is arranged very harmoniously.

When walking down the village's main street made of natural stone foot feels comfortable and the eyes are spoiled by the sight of small gardens filled with colorful flowers in each yard. The atmosphere of the village is very calm, with only the sound of water gurgling from small gutters and birds chirping in the trees. The air is cool and fresh, far from pollution and vehicle noise. The villagers are very friendly, welcoming visitors with a smile and a warm greeting.

Besides physical beauty, Panglipuran village also upholds the values of simplicity, mutual cooperation, and local wisdom. They have a bamboo forest that has been preserved for generations as a form of respect for nature. The experience of visiting this village is not just about seeing beautiful scenery, but also learning about how to live in harmony with nature and culture. Panglipuran is a clear example of how tradition and progress can go hand in hand.

My home

My home is comfortable and loving place. It is located on the outskirts of the city, surrounded by lush green trees. The building is simple, with white paint and a red roof. Inside, there is a spacious living room with a sofa and a wooden table.

The walls are adorned with family photos filled with memories. Every morning, sunlight streams through the large windows, creating a warm atmosphere. In the backyard, there is a small garden planted with various colorful flowers. This home is always filled with laughter and happiness, especially during family gatherings. I feel safe and comfortable here, and that is why my home means so much to me.

A Lively Little Rabbit

In my backyard, I had a little rabbit named Lala. She was white with a few brown patches on her back and ears. Her legs were tiny and strong, allowing her to jump high when playing. Her fur was soft like freshly picked cotton. Her eyes were round and deep black, full of curiosity.

Every morning, Lala runs around the garden, occasionally digging in the dirt or sniffing flowers. She is very active and has difficulty staying still, except when given carrots or kale vegetables, her favorite food. Her voice is almost inaudible, but her behavior always makes me smile. She likes to play under the sun or hide under the planting bench. Lala is a little bunny who brings joy, making my days feel more alive.

My cat

My cat is a playful and affectionate companion. Her name is Luna, and she is a beautiful tabby with soft, striped fur and bright green eyes. Luna loves to chase after her toys, especially the little feather mouse that I bought for her.

She has a curious nature and often explores every corner of the house, climbing onto shelves and peeking into boxes. In the evenings, she enjoys curling up on my lap while I read or watch TV, purring contentedly. Luna is also quite vocal she meows to greet me when I come home and often 'talks' to me when she wants attention. Her playful antics and loving personality bring joy to my life, making her more than just a pet she is a cherished member of the family.

MY FAVORITE FOOD

My favorite food is mother's fried rice. It's a simple meal, but it tastes delicious. Rice fried with shallots, garlic, chili and sweet soy sauce produce a tempting aroma. Produces a tantalizing fragrance. Mom usually adds pieces of sausage, scrambled eggs, and vegetables such as cabbage and ~~car~~ carrots. The brownish color of the rice looks very appetizing. Each bite is warm, slightly spicy, savory and sweet. The texture of the ~~rice~~ rice is not too mushy make is perfect on the tongue.

With the addition of crackers and pickled cucumber, this fried rice becomes a dish that makes me always want more. Even though I've tasted fried rice in famous restaurant, mom's taste is still the best. This food is not only filling, but also brings a sense of ~~comp~~ comfort and love from home.
