the writer is a strong person and does not give up easily. Thank you for being a strong person, who continues to stand when the world feels heavy, and continues to fight as a hope for her beloved parents. Thank you for daring to believe in yourself that you are able to complete this long journey to the end even though many things have befallen you but you can still focus on completing all of this. Always be happy, Desak, wherever you step. Continue to celebrate your presence in this world, and let your light illuminate every space you pass through, and always love and care for yourself no matter what the situation. Rest assured, every effort and prayer you make is never in vain, because God always has beautiful plans and the best surprises for you. May every step you take be filled with goodness, and may God always be with you on every journey of your life. God willing.

Finally, the writer hopes that the results of this research can provide tangible benefits for the development of English learning and teaching processes, particularly in enriching more effective and meaningful learning approaches using technology, specifically ChatGPT. The writer also recognizes that this research still has limitations, therefore, with full humility, the writer greatly welcomes constructive criticism, suggestions, and input from various parties. It is hoped that this feedback will serve as a valuable foundation for improving this research and provide direction for the development of similar studies in the future.
