		Indirect through conversation	24. a	“How’s Hermione?” (p. 478)
			2, b	“Once I’m seventeen, the protective charm that keeps me safe will break, and that exposes you as well as me. The Order is sure Voldemort will target you, whether to torture you to try and find out where I am, or because he thinks by holding you hostage I'd come and try to rescue you." (p. 33)

		2. b	"You've got to go into hiding and the Order wants to help. You're being offered serious protection, the best there is." (p. 33)
		6.d	"No news about Mad-Eye?" Harry asked Bill. (p. 90)
		8. a	. "Are you sure you don't want to put anything on that bite, though?" "Oh, it's fine," said Luna (p. 141)
		10. e	"So he can beat himself up with the poker?" snorted Harry, kneeling beside the elf. "I don't think so. Right, Kreacher, I want the truth: How do you know Mundungus Fletcher stole the locket?" (p. 192)
		11. b	"What's going on? Is everyone okay?" (p. 204)
	Indirect thorough description	6. g	"I don't want a fuss," said Harry quickly, envisaging the additional strain this would put on them all. “Really, Mrs. Weasley, just a normal dinner would be fine. . . . It’s the day before the wedding. . . .” (p. 109)

5.	Helpful	Indirect through action	5. f	“Harry ran forward and seized George’s legs. ” (p. 69)
			5. k	“Harry, give us a hand!” called Hagrid hoarsely from the door, in which he was stuck again. Glad of something to do, Harry pulled him free, then headed through the empty kitchen and back into the sitting room,” (p.73)

		Indirect description	through	6.c	After two days of nonstop cutlery cleaning, of color-matching favors, ribbons, and flowers, of de-gnoming the garden and helping Mrs. Weasley cook vast batches of canapés, however, Harry started to suspect her of a different motive. (p. 89)
		Indirect conversation	through	6. d	“I can help, some of it’s my mess,” Harry told Ron, but Mrs. Weasley cut across him. (p.92)
				13. c	Harry told the waiting Muggle-borns, who were dazzled by the light of the Patronuses and still cowering slightly. “Go abroad if you can. Just get well away from the Ministry. That’s the — er — new official position. Now, if you’ll just follow the Patronuses, you’ll be able to leave from the Atrium.” (p. 264)
6.	Willing to Sacrifice	Indirect action	through	5. q	““I can’t stay here.” He rubbed his forehead; it was prickling again, it had not hurt like this for more than a year. “You’re all in danger while I’m here. I don’t want —” ” (p. 82)

7.	Anti-Discrimination	Indirect through conversation	10. e	“I told you not to call her ‘Mudblood!’” snarled Harry, but the elf was already punishing himself: He fell to the ground and banged his forehead on the floor.” (p. 197)
			10. e	“I forbid you to call anyone ‘blood traitor’ or ‘Mudblood,’ ” growled Harry. (p. 191)
		Indirect through action	24. a	And shortly afterward he had set to work, alone, digging the grave in the place that Bill had shown him at the end of the garden, between bushes. (p. 478)
8.	Careful	Indirect through action	11. b	“Every nerve in his body seemed to tauten: He pulled out his wand, moved into the shadows beside the decapitated elf heads, and waited.” (p. 203)

			9.f	Gingerly Harry took another step forward. Something shifted in the shadows at the end of the hall, and before any of them could say another word, a figure had risen up out of the carpet, tall, dustcolored, and terrible (p. 170)
			11. b	““Oh, thank goodness,” said Hermione weakly, pointing her wand at Mrs. Black instead; with a bang, the curtains swished shut again and silence fell. Ron too lowered his wand, but Harry did not.” (p. 203)

		Indirect through action	31. q	“It’s — too — dangerous — !” Ron yelled, but Harry wheeled in the air. (p. 633)
10.	Hardworking	Indirect through action	16. e	It was therefore a full week later — once they had surreptitiously obtained hairs from innocent Muggles who were Christmas shopping, and had practiced Apparating and Disapparating while underneath the Invisibility Cloak together — that Hermione agreed to make the journey. (p. 321)
			10. b	He seized papers, treating them, in his eagerness, with as little consideration as the original searcher; he pulled open drawers, shook out books, stood on a chair to run his hand over the top of the wardrobe, and crawled under the bed and armchair. (p. 182)
			10. d	They combed every inch of the room for more than an hour, but were forced, finally, to conclude that the locket was not there. (p. 188)

11.	Friendly	Indirect through action	8.a	Harry, who had no grudge against Krum, shook hands; then, feeling that it would be prudent to remove Krum from Ron’s vicinity, offered to show him his seat. (p. 143)
			8.c	“Who are you?” Krum asked. “Barny Weasley.” They shook hands. “You, Barny — you know this man Lovegood vell?” “No, I only met him today. Why?” Krum glowered over the top of his drink, watching Xenophilius, who was chatting to several warlocks on the other side of the dance floor. (p. 147-148)
12.	Peace Loving	Indirect through action	8.c	;then, feeling that it would be prudent to remove Krum from Ron’s vicinity, offered to show him his seat. (p. 143)
			14.e	She dropped down in the mouth of the tent, looking stubborn. Angry, but wishing to avoid a row,

				Harry ducked back inside. Ron’s still-pale face was poking out from the lower bunk; Harry climbed into the one above him, lay down, and looked up at the dark canvas ceiling. (p. 281)
13.	Honest	Direct conversation	through 15. g	“I’ve been straight with you from the start, I told you everything Dumbledore told me. And in case you haven’t noticed, we’ve found one Horcrux —” (p. 307)
14.	Responsible	Indirect conversation	through 9.e	“Brilliant!” said Harry, clapping her on the back. “Take care of the other one and the waitress while Ron and I clear up.” (p. 167)
			6.d	“Now, Ron, have you cleaned out your room yet?” “Why?” exclaimed Ron, slamming his spoon down and glaring at his mother. “Why does my room have to be cleaned out? Harry and I are fine with it the way it is!” “We are holding your brother’s wedding here in a few days’ time, young man —” “And are they getting married in my bedroom?” asked Ron furiously. “No! So why in the name of Merlin’s saggy left —” “Don’t talk to your mother like that,” said Mr. Weasley firmly. “And do as you’re told.” Ron scowled at both his parents, then picked up his spoon and attacked the last few mouthfuls of his apple tart. “I can help, some of it’s my mess,” Harry told Ron, but Mrs. Weasley cut across him. (p.92)

15.	Curious	Direct description	through 3.d	He looked curiously at his cousin (p. 40)
		Indirect description	through 10. b	Harry got to his feet and scanned the floor: Perhaps the rest of the letter was here somewhere (p. 182)
			14.e	What was Voldemort trying to find? Why, with the Ministry of Magic and the Wizarding world at his feet, was he far away, intent on the pursuit of an object that Gregorovitch had once owned, and which had been stolen by the unknown

			thief? (p. 282)
	Indirect conversation	through	7. g
			“And why couldn’t he just have told me?” Harry said quietly. “It was there, it was right there on the wall of his office during all our talks last year! If he wanted me to have it, why didn’t he just give it to me then?” He felt as though he were sitting in an examination with a question he ought to have been able to answer in front of him, his brain slow and unresponsive. Was there something he had missed in the long talks with Dumbledore last year? Ought he to know what it all meant? Had Dumbledore expected him to understand? (p. 134)
			8. i
			“What d’you mean, locked in the cellar?” asked Harry. “What is this?” (p. 155)
			10. c
			“Let’s find out,” said Harry. He pushed the door: It was locked. Hermione pointed her wand at the handle and said, “Alohomora.” There was a click, and the door

				swung open. (p. 187)
			10. e	“You called the locket ‘Master Regulus’s,’ ” said Harry. “Why? Where did it come from? What did Regulus have to do with it? Kreacher, sit up and tell me everything you know about that locket, and everything Regulus had to do with it!” (p. 192)
16.	Cooperative	Indirect through action	4. e	With all of their eyes upon him, Harry reached up to the top of his head, grabbed a hank of hair, and pulled. (p. 50)
			4. e	Harry dropped the hair into the mudlike liquid. The moment it made contact with its surface, the potion began to froth and smoke, then, all at once, it turned a clear, bright gold. (p. 50)
17.	Optimistic	Indirect through conversation	5. g	“None of the Order would have told Voldemort we were moving tonight,” said Harry. (p .70)
			5. p	“No,” Harry said aloud, and they all looked at him, surprised: The firewhisky

				seemed to have amplified his voice. “I mean . . . if somebody made a mistake,” Harry went on, and let something slip, I know they didn’t mean to do it. It’s not their fault,” he repeated, again a little louder than he would usually have spoken. “We’ve got to trust each other. I trust all of you, I don’t think anyone in this room would ever sell me to Voldemort.” (p. 80)
